Miller on board at UMC's Center for Adult Learning

By Krista Lemos on Wednesday, January 18, 2006

Rhonda Miller is the new Program Associate in the Center for Adult Learning at the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC).

Miller, a native of Greenbush, Minnesota, graduated from UMC in the summer 2005 with a B.S. in Information Technology Management and a minor in Business Management. Miller is pursuing a master's degree in Public, Health and Human Service Administration from Minnesota State University, Moorhead.

Miller has experience in web design and assisted UMC's Instructional Design Center with the re-design of UMC's website launched last fall. "Rhonda will be working with UMC's College in the High School program, PSEO Online as well as UMC's online degree and off site programs. "We are excited to have Rhonda on board," said Michelle Christopherson, Director of the Center for Adult Learning. "She brings excellent customer service & technology skills, she is eager to assist all online and offsite students with their UMC experience." UMC is a four-year baccalaureate degree granting institution.
